

All colors in the Colored city lived in peace and love. Red has always protested and often took part in the revolutions. Blue has often calmed and coolant boiling situation. Yellow was jealous, and Green was conceited. She claimed that she was most seen in the world. Violet likes to sleep until noon, Orange dances every Saturday in the stream, and Light Blue often jumps by the clouds.

But they are all agreed in one - without them there would be no rainbow in the sky.

One day in their happy town wandered a tiny dwarf. He brought with him a magical flower with seven petals.

This flower was not an ordinary one but one that was known under the name of 'The Carrier' and took the flowers to the dwarf's country.

When they reached that strange world, they started to get pale, fading their color.

On the other planet, the colors' family went sad because they couldn't find their kids anymore.

The Brush, who was a teacher for the colors, went downtown and found a petal from the magic flower spotted in the known colors. The Brush made a wish and reached the dwarf's world. She managed to get her pupils back and they all returned to their country feeling happy and relieved.

The people in the colored city were very proud to have such a brave citizen as the Brush teacher.
