

All colors in the Colored city lived in peace and love.

Red has always protested and often took part in the revolutions. Blue has often calmed and coolant boiling situation. Yellow was jealous, and Green was conceited. She claimed that she was most seen in the world. Violet likes to sleep until noon, Orange dances every Saturday in the stream, and Light Blue often jumps by the clouds.

But they are all agreed in one - without them there would be no rainbow in the sky.

One day in their happy town wandered a tiny dwarf. He brought with him a magical flower with seven petals. But the colors didn't know one very important thing: if you made a wish while sitting on the magic flower, it would happen exactly the other way round. So, red wanted all the people to be colored in red but the flower colored only their cheeks. Yellow wanted the sky to have his color but only the sun ended up yellow. Blue wanted Earth to be in his color but only the sky and the waters were blue.

Green soon realized what was going on and wanted the dwarf to be tall to be able to step on the grass but he turned into a very , very small creature, that is exactly the other way round.

In this way, the dwarf was punished and since then, all the dwarfs sneak through the grass always wanting to grow up again.
