

THE ADVENTURE

OF COLORS

All colors in the Colored city lived in peace and love.

Red has always protested and often took part in the revolutions.

Blue has often calmed and coolant boiling situation. Yellow was jealous, and Green was conceited. She claimed that she was most seen in the world. Violet likes to sleep until noon, Orange dances every Saturday in the stream, and Light Blue often jumps by the clouds.

But they are all agreed in one - without them there would be no rainbow in the sky.

One day in their happy town wandered a tiny dwarf. He brought with him a magical flower with seven petals

One day, in the town of colors, a dwarf got lost. He had a magic flower.

The colors were very happy to have him. However, the dwarf didn't have the best intentions. Pretending he wanted to thank them for their hospitality, the dwarf told the colors to sit on his magic flower and make a wish.

"Blue" wished to be able to fly above the clouds, "Green" to become the world's master, "Purple" that the day would not exist, so as to sleep longer, and "Orange" wished people were more patient.

While colors were making their most fervent wishes, sitting on each of the seven petals of the magic flower, the dwarf cast a spell and beamed all the colors into his world. In the middle of the lab from his secret tower, the colors were looking in confusion at a strange machine.

Then, the dwarf explained that their wishes could come true if they accepted to get into the machine.

Eager to see their dreams come true, the colors entered one by one the "Black Juicer". Only "Purple", which was always sleepy, could not hear the dwarf's promise and didn't keep up with her sisters when they jumped into the strange machine.

As soon as the dwarf saw his treasure inside slammed the lid over them and turned on the machine. The colors began to feel sick, squeezed of energy and grew paler and paler. Their life was over.

However, even if everything seemed hopeless and there was no one around to save them, there appeared Mother Brush and Father Palette alerted by their sleepy daughter "Violet". They were able to stop the machine and release the colors. Scared of this happening, the dwarf stumbled on his machine cover and fell himself into the "Black Juicer."

Feeling happy that they succeeded in escaping from the magic tower, the seven sisters embraced each other and were off in the sky making up the Rainbow again, all to the delight of their parents, Mom Brush and Dad Palette.
