

Free Movement of goods, persons, capital and services

Natalie & David

Goods

Free movement of goods

Treaty (Article 28 TFEU(The Treaty on the Functioning of the European Union)).

imports are circulate free

Treaty on the Functioning of the European Union article 34, 'Quantitative

Service

business services on a cross-border basis within the European Economic Area (EEA)

Freedom of services business consists of open market business binding authority agreement.

Persons(workers)

acquis communautaire of the European Union.

Freedom of movement abolition of any discrimination remuneration and other conditions of work and employment public policy, public security or public health

Capital

free movement of capital

Maastricht treaty.

Capital flows between countries can yield significant benefits

They allow investors to diversify their risks and increase returns recipient countries could get to finance rapid rates of investment and economic growth, as well as to increase consumption