Chapter 3

Las flores y su olor mágico hicieron que la el planeta viviera más feliz y tranquilo. El mar ofrecía algas y alimentos a la gente.

The flowers and their magical smell made the planet to live happier and calmer. The sea offered algae and food to the people.

Aparecieron puentes como arcoíris que cruzaban caminos a los pueblos y las familias se podían ver más.

Bridges appeared from the soil as rainbows and people could see their families more often. The villages were connected.

Algunos árboles producían piedras preciosas y otros regalos y los reinos se podían intercambiar sus riquezas para vivir mejor.

Some trees produced gemstones and other gifts and the kingdoms could exchange their wealth to live better.

Los animales
del mar empezaron a
tener bebés y
el mar era
un paraíso

para vivir.

The sea animals began to have babies and the sea was a paradise to live.

La gente
trabajaba y
descansaba sin
miedo. Por fin,
tenían un reino
en el que vivir

felices.

People worked and rested without fear. Finally, they could live in a kingdom happily.

El único problema ahora era saber quién podría ser su rey: Un rey justo y bueno.
¿Quién sería?

The only problem people had was: Who could be their new king? They wanted a just and good king.

Who would be?
