THE ART OF CODING

When people hear word "art" they think about painting, music, literature but it's not enough! Art is about expressing your thoughts, imagination, emotions, ideas using somere creative way. Coding may not be an art in itself but what you creates from it may be definitely an art, so we can say that "Coding" is definitely an art. Knowing how to code empowers everyone: you can virtually create almost anything that you can imagine with it. Creative coding is a type of computer programming, in which the goal is to create something expressive instead of something functional.
