

The climate strike

Thousands of teens are striking for the climate over the Netherlands. They want to show the primors that they want change in the climate. There is a group of teens who call themselves : Youth for climate. Their name means that they want to show the primors and the people that they want change. On the 17th of January they already held a strike for climate. Where around 12,500 students and teens came to! On 24th of February they again held a strike for the climate and 32,000 students and teens came to Brussel. On the 31th of January 10,000 students and teens came to strike. Not only in The Netherlands, also in Australia, Canada and in many other countries.

How did this start you may ask? This al began in Sweden, with a 16 year old girl named Greta Thunberg. She started in August 2018. She also came to The Netherlands by train I believe.

Jewel's opinion about the Strike is; I think this has to have more attention for the climate but skipping school for it is a bit too much. I would strike to but i'd rather stay in school to learn for later

Lisa's opinion about the strike is; I think the same as Jewel, giving up school for the world is kinda too much, but I do understand why they would do such thing. There needs to be more attention for the world and especially the nature.
