

Happy Easter in Germany

Easter isn't such a big festival as Christmas in Germany, but it's important too.

Easter means for us: Colour eggs, go egghunting and eat chocolate, go to church (some of us)

Mostly we have something delicious to eat on Easter Sunday and Easter Monday and young children get small presents.

We have Easter holidays for a bit more than two weeks.

Easter isn't only one day. The Easter season starts at Palm Sunday and ends at the "Ascension" which is called "Christi Himmelfahrt" in Germany. On Holy Thursday, Christ had the last supper before his death. On Good Friday Christ was crucified. Holy Saturday is the day which almost time ends. On Easter Sunday, we celebrate the Resurrection of Christ.
