

THE MOST ADMIRED IMMIGRANTS IN THE NETHERLANDS:

Our Royal Family 😊

They have German roots (the King has not only Dutch, but also German roots via his father's mother's and grandparents' families):

Our Queen Maxima is Argentinian , so her daughters are Dutch, German and Argentinian too:

SPORT:

There are a lot of sporters coming from formal colonies, especially Suriname. Football used to be the place they showed their talents and so they became symbols for the young generations (Ruud Gullit, Frank Rijkaard, Edgar Davies) and it is even said that they revolutionised the Dutch sport.

There are also women (swimmers), like Ranomi Kromowidjojo, who broke records and became role models for youngsters:

CULTURE:

The Dutch were already open to others during WWII. One of such an examples is still Anne Frank (who immigrated to Amsterdam from Germany).

Contemporary examples of the Dutch with different roots are:

Katja Schuurman (an actress: Dutch, Surinamese, Chinese) and Olcay Gulsen (a model/a fashion designer: Turkish)
