

Booming sector 2

In Spain (2 Sector)

Agri-food industry

In Turkey (2 Sector)

Textile

In Greece (2 Sector)

Manufacturing industries

Comparison of sector 2 in our countries

In France, the industry of cars is important because Renault is the first industry of Automobile in France and it is developed because car industry in France is the result of a process that started a long time ago, in the XIX century that lead to the creation of industrial regions, mainly in the North and East of the country. Then the French industry has not stopped improving its quality thanks to many thousands of consumers.

In Spain , the industry of agriculture it's very important because normally the population of Spain use the products only make in Spain , for example : The banana of Canarias

In Romania we use the industry of IT because, the companies in Romania need computers for development and production centers. This is an inheritance of the Soviet Era during which Romania had to produce electronic goods for the whole communist bloc.

In the UK , the industry of manufacturing goods is important because it is very famous for mechanic products and the chemicals are developed due to the production of medicines and cosmetics.

Turkey has developed in textiles because the people in Turkey love their own cultures and they buy clothes from their nation but we must also say that this results from history as Turkey is strategically situated at the crossroad between the different textile materials and fabrics such as cotton from Asia Minor and the oriental or European markets, that reminds us of the silk road.

In Greece the sector 2 is referred to the oil products, this because there was a demand for these products from the other countries.