Harry: Hello and welcome to our presentation about migration in the UK.

Flora: As you can see from both the graph, the levels of net immigration have been steadily growing for many years. This is down to many reasons such as wide range of jobs and good healthcare. Up until fairly recently when unfortunately attitudes have changed migrants have been very welcomed

Olivia: This graph shows the distribution of different ethnic migrants and as you can see are widely. The largest numbers coming from India and Pakistan. This could be related to older colonial links.

Sam: This graph shows the number of people emigrating from the UK. On average 4,000 try to leave the UK every week with most relocating inside the Commonwealth or the EU.

Harry: This graph shows the distribution of all jobs done in the UK by EU and non EU born citizens.

Sam: Moving to a new country doesn't come without challenges. For most it includes having to learn a new language, raise children in a new school with a new culture. Making sure they have a roof over their heads and a good job they can rely on.

Olivia: Specifically in the UK challenges that migrants face include a rise in nationalist views and a much harder time trying to be granted entry into the country.

Flora: Immigration brings many more benefits than it does negatives. For example it brings many cultural influences that have become part of many people's lives from what we eat to many words in our language.

Harry: Thank you for listening to our presentation on immigration.
