One day she decided to make donuts. She made some dough and made little balls. A big donut came out of the balls. The grandma liked it and fried it. Then she decorated it and let it cool down on the window.

The donut got lively and began to roll all over the cottage. The grandma noticed it and was surprised. The donut noticed her as well. They were looking at each other for a moment. Grandma began to look after it as it would be her son. The donut was grateful and considered her its mother.
