

With over 4 million cases on Earth, Covid-19 has killed over 315,000 people worldwide. France currently has more than 28,000 deaths, the United States about 90,000, Germany 8070, Spain 27,650 and Greece 163. All these figures vary every day and are therefore very approximate. Almost all the Earth is under quarantine in order to calm this virus and to relieve intensive care in hospitals. Symptoms of corona are fever, cough, fatigue. Aches, sore throat, diarrhea, conjunctivitis, headache, loss of smell or taste, skin rash, or discoloration of fingers or toes. A vaccine is being "prepared", several treatments are being tested on patients (such as chloroquine). The vaccine should be ready by next year according to some clinics, it may also take more time and we should learn to live with this deadly virus for a long time .

Recently, in France, containment has been stopped, but there are many health measures such as standing at a distance, wearing a mask and frequent hand washing.

Some students and adults are still teleworking when possible and the bars, restaurants and summer camps will reopen on June 2nd. The system of red and green zones makes it possible to know what measures are being taken in each department, these zones are adjusted in view of the number of cases present in the territory. Recently it was announced that everyone in France (red and green zones) will be able to travel during July-August while respecting the measures in place.

In Germany, schools have reopened and the situation is well managed. Wearing a mask is compulsory, many people are tested and there is enough room in hospitals. Large gatherings are forbidden until August 31. Germany has probably managed the epidemic better than France.

In Spain, the number of deaths is gradually decreasing and containment remains strict in the major cities. Shops and terraces are reopening in half of the country and every person coming to Spain must be quarantined for 14 days.

The Greek authorities have taken several measures to limit the spread of the virus. A partial deconfinement was initiated on 4 May, with a 14-day containment period for all travellers arriving in Greece. The external borders of the European area are closed.
