The front of a typical house.

In many old houses we can see the coat of arms of the family on the façade of the house. That means that the family bolonged to nobility.

The stone is a type of local granite stone called "molinaza". It has a typical reddish colour, which gives its characteristic colour to the town.

This stone was used to build the mills, hence its name, molino = mill

ROOMS IN A TYPICAL HOUSE

This house is over 100 years old. Downstairs we have the dining room which also included the kitchen (above). We can see the fireplace where the food was cooked but now there is a modern kitchen in a different place. Because of the fireplace the house got dirty easily, according to the owner of the house, now over 80 years old.

FIRST FLOOR (downstairs)

-Courtyard (2)

-Larder/Cupboard (3)

-Stable (1)

-Kitchen

-Living room

-Dining room (4)

4)

2)

3)

1)

SECOND FLOOR (upstairs)

-Bedrooms
-Bathroom

The bathroom is modern but the bedrooms still contain the typical decoration and furniture popular in the 1930s