Preparatory activities:

Children learn about the Olympic games and link this topic to our Erasmus project. For this activity children will learn the symbols, history and meaning of the Olympic games flag as a whole class activity. They will design a flag for our Games. Every flag should have a deeper meaning - it should be based on symbols important for our countries and the ideas of the Games.

Activity:

Children will design individually, in groups and as a whole class a flag for our project. Each class will do it following the teacher's instructions but each child can use the resources they like to design their flag.

Children will have to write the meaning of their flag, explaining what the symbols are and why they are important to our project and countries.

Subsequent activities:

Children will share with the classmates their flag, they will talk about the meaning and a votation will take place. One flag will be chosen by each class.

Results:

In the staff meeting, teachers will share their chosen flag from each class and a votation will take place to choose the 3 best ones to share in the blog.

Children and adults were involved in this activity. It was a great start for our project and a motivating art lesson for the children.
