

Tres en Ratilla

The game box is marked: a square of about 30 or 40 cm next to which we join the vertices between them and also the centers on each side, forming a figure with 9 points to put or mark, three on each side and one in the middle.

The goal is to put three pebbles, playing tools, of a person, into three brands aligned: do three in line.

Start one of the people by placing their right in the middle (which you can not move during the game). The others puts his first hit on one of the brands. Then the first puts the second hit to another brand. Then the second person will put their own in a brand but covering the next move of the first person to avoid that, when putting is the third peright, three in line. So, thinking of the movements that must be done to try to achieve the objective while covering it in the opposite, will follow the game until anyone manage to put their pebbles aligned, and do three in line. The next game begins by placing the person who had not done so in the previous round
