CAP DE CREU

An aerial photograph of the coastal town of Estartit, Spain. The town is built on a green, hilly peninsula that extends into the deep blue sea. In the distance, a small, rocky island with a lighthouse is visible. The town itself is a mix of traditional and modern buildings, with many houses featuring red roofs. A large, stylized text overlay reads "ESTARTIT" in bold, yellow letters with a dark gray shadow effect.

ESTARTIT

An aerial photograph of the coastal town of Sant Feliu de Guíxols. The town is built on a hillside overlooking a large, sandy beach and a deep blue harbor filled with many sailboats and small boats. The town's buildings, mostly houses with red roofs, are densely packed. In the foreground, there's a rocky coastline with some low-rise buildings. A large, stylized text "SANT FELIU DE GUÍXOLS" is overlaid on the image, with the letters colored yellow and grey.

SANT FELIU DE GUÍXOLS

An aerial photograph of the Empuriabrava development. The image shows a large, planned community built along a coastline. The town features a grid-like street pattern with numerous houses, many with red-tiled roofs. A prominent feature is a large marina filled with boats, which is integrated into the urban design. The town is situated between the sea to the west and a range of hills or mountains in the background. The sky is clear and blue.

EMPURIABRAVA

An aerial photograph of the coastal town of Palamós, Spain. The town is built on a hillside overlooking a large, sandy beach. In the foreground, the deep blue water of the Mediterranean Sea meets the shore. To the right, a marina is filled with many white sailboats and yachts. The town itself is a mix of traditional and modern architecture, with numerous buildings, some with red roofs and others with more modern designs. A road runs along the coastline, and a railway track is visible further inland.
