

THE LEGEND SAYS...

Once upon a time in Montblanc there was a very big and wild dragon. The dragon was terrorising the citizens from a lot time ago it had eaten all the animals and some people too, so one day the King decided to choose every day a random person to feed the beast. But, by lottey, the first person to be eaten by the dragon was the king's daughter. All the town was sad for it and they asked for save her, but the king was faithful in his decision. A knight heart about it and he decided to fight against with the dragon. The next day, the princes went to the dragon's cave but the knight stop her and slained the dragon with his lance. Then the dragon's died and for his blood grow up a a lot of very beutiful and red roses. The knight caught the most beutiful and gave it to the princes, after that he left the town with his white horse.

THE END

