Week I spend in Sicily was full of adventures, smiles and sun. I made so many memories that will live with me for a long time. During the week, not only me and my friends from Lithuania met a lot of new people, saw so many breath-taking places, tasted incredibly delicious traditional food, like pizza and pasta but also learned a lot about local sustainable tourism. We had interesting workshops and lectures about. It was a pleasure to visit Sicily – a country with magnificent nature and especially warm and people. I am very grateful to have an opportunity to be a part of this project.

I'm grateful for this week in Sicily. After a year in lockdown this is what we needed – travelling, meeting new people, seeing new places and discovering the world through the eyes of young people. Besides improving my English language and public speaking skills I'm lucky to have an ability of taking part in a new business making and gaining knowledge about sustainable tourism. Sicily has my heart now, but I want to come back later and explore other parts of this beautiful country Italy.

The mobility to Sicily has given me many different experiences. Most importantly I have learned more about sustainable tourism and entrepreneurship. I have also made new friendships, experienced a different culture, new cuisine and the beauty of Sicily.

This project has given me a lot of experience. During this short week, I met many new sincere and cheerful people. They gave me the opportunity to learn about other cultures, their lives. I realized that people don't have to speak one language to love each other's souls. Of course, the most important thing was the expansion of English language skills. We were in various activities, but the most interesting thing was to learn about the culture of Italy, to see its famous cultural objects. So, I can say that this week was full of amazing people, impressions, experiences.

The one week we had in Italy was joyful and educating. We had a lot of time to explore the city and communicate with others. We visited many delightful places. Also, we learned many new things about sustainable tourism while we gracefully were working in international groups. We had a wonderful time together which we won't forget for a long time.
