

This week in Spain is over, and after a short time I would like to return there. In this week I have grown so much: I interacted with totally different cultures and and I improved my English a lot. My host family lived in Roda de Ter, the country where we spent this week. Among the many excursions that we did the two that I liked best were those at "L'avenc de Taverter" and the two days in Barcelona. The first is an eco-sustainable hotel in the middle of the mountains, a beautiful place where I would like to return. The two days in Barcelona were intense: we visited many places but my favourite was the Boqueria market (in the photo)
