THE GREEK ALPHABET¹

The Greeks were the first Europeans to learn to write with an alphabet, and from them alphabetic writing spread to the rest of Europe, eventually leading down to all modern European alphabets. Incidentally, the Greeks tried writing once before. Between 1500 and 1200 BCE, the Mycenaeans, an early tribe of Greeks, adapted the Minoan syllabary as Linear B to write an early form of Greek. However, the syllabary was not well suited to write Greek, and the exact pronunciation of Mycenaean words remains somewhat obscure. The alphabet, on the other hand, allowed a more precise record of the sounds in the language

From the shape of the letters, it is clear that the Greeks adopted the alphabet the Phoenician script, mostly like during the late 9th century BCE. In fact, Greek historian Herotodus, who lived during the 5th century BCE, called the Greek letters "phoinikeia grammata" (φοινικῆια γράμματα), which means Phoenician letters. Unlike Greek, the Phoenician alphabet only had letters for consonants. When the Greeks adopted the alphabet, they found letters representing sounds not found in Greek. Instead of throwing them away, they modified the extraneous letters to represent vowels. For example, the Phoenician letter 'aleph (which stood for a glottal stop) became the Greek letter alpha (which stands for [a] sound).

There were many variants of the early Greek alphabet, each suited to a local dialect. Eventually the Ionian alphabet was adopted in all Greek-speaking states, but before that happened, the European variant was carried to the Italic peninsula and adopted by Etruscan and eventually Latin

True or False are the statements :

1. The Greek alphabet is the first alphabet. _____
2. All European writing systems derive from the Greek alphabet. _____
3. The Greeks adopted the Phoenician script. _____
4. There were letters in the Phoenician script which the Greeks ignored as there were no such sounds in their language. _____
5. There used to be more than one variant of the early Greek alphabet suited to one and the same dialect. _____

Cyrillic alphabet makes first appearance on euro notes

- A. Background
- B. New face of the euro
- C. Cyrillic: a political signal
- D. Cyrillic alphabet makes first appearance on euro notes

1. _____

The European Central Bank unveiled yesterday (10 January)³ a new 5-euro note, with warmed colours and better protection against counterfeiting. For the first time, it also carries the name ‘Euro’ written in the Cyrillic alphabet, and displays a portrait of Europa, a figure from Greek mythology.

2. _____

Mario Draghi, President of the European Central Bank (ECB), unveiled the ‘Europa series’ €5 banknote, with his signature featured under the EU flag. It will be issued, on 2 May 2013. The presentation was the highlight of the opening of a “New Face of the Euro” exhibition, at the Archaeological Museum in Frankfurt am Main from 11 January to 10 March 2013. The new €5 banknote benefits from some new and enhanced security features. The watermark and hologram display a portrait of Europa, a figure from Greek mythology – and hence the name of this series of banknotes. An eye-catching “emerald number” changes colour from emerald green to deep blue, and displays a vertically moving light effect. Short raised lines on the left and right edges of the banknote make it easier to identify the banknote, especially for visually impaired people.

3. _____

Most importantly, the new note features for the first time the word 'Euro' in Cyrillic: евро, along with the Greek Ευρο. Since Bulgaria, the only EU country using the Cyrillic alphabet, is not yet a member of the eurozone, this could be seen as a political signal of the ECB's trust in the future enlargement of the European single currency area.

Two candidate countries, Macedonia and Serbia, also use the Cyrillic alphabet. The name 'Cyrillic alphabet' honours the younger of the Cyril and Methodius brothers, born in Thessaloniki at the beginning of the 9th Century, who created the Glagolitic and then the Cyrillic alphabets with the aim to have the Bible and other texts translated into Slavic languages.

The new banknotes of the 'Europa' series with denominations of €10, €20, €50, €100, €200 and €500, will be introduced over the next few years, in ascending order. Their "ages and styles" design and dominant colours will be the same as the first series. Gradually, the first series will be withdrawn and eventually cease to be legal tender – with advance warning. But first series' banknotes will retain their value indefinitely and be exchangeable at euro-area national central banks at any time.

4. _____

In 862, Prince Rastislav of Great Moravia requested that the Byzantine Emperor Michael III and the Patriarch Photius of Constantinople send missionaries to evangelise his Slavic subjects.

Cyril and Methodius were sent, having designed for the purpose the Glagolic alphabet, the first to be used in Slavonic manuscripts.

In 863 Cyril and Methodius began translating the bible in Old Church Slavonic and travelled to Great Moravia to promote it.

Later, Cyril and Methodius developed the Cyrillic alphabet, as a political project of Bulgarian king Boris, whose reign from 852 to 889 was marked by the Christianisation of Bulgarians.

The EU in short for teens

According to the European Union policy

These values unite all the member states – no country that does not recognise these values can belong to the Union.

The main goal of the European Union is to defend these values in Europe and promote peace and the wellbeing of the citizens. For its part, the European Parliament seeks to ensure that these values are realised in the EU legislation.

The EU member states are pluralistic. Nobody may be discriminated against; instead, people and government representatives must respect others and be tolerant. Everybody must be treated fairly. Minority rights must be respected. Equality between men and men is promoted. Responsibility must be shared.

The European Union works for social equality. It develops social security and tries to protect the weakest. It seeks to prevent social exclusion and discrimination.

All these fundamental values are defined in the Treaty of Lisbon Lissabonin sopimuksessa (2009).

The Treaty of Lisbon officially confirmed the universal citizens' rights as well as political, economic and social rights.

The Charter of Fundamental Rights forbids discrimination because of gender, race or the colour of the skin. Also, discrimination based on religion or sexual orientation is forbidden.

Additionally, the Charter of Fundamental Rights defines rights to data security, bioethics and good administration. It obligates employers to look after their employees. For example, employees have the right to access information, negotiate and go on strike.

What is YUM about

The Creative Europe culture cooperation project, “Youngsters United in Music” (abbreviated to YUM), is a collaboration between the European Music Festival for Young People (Neerpelt – Belgium, EMJ), the Európa Jövője

The EU in short for teens

Egyesület (Kecskemét – Hungary, EJE) and the Bratislava Music Agency (Bratislava – Slovak Republic, BMA). The EMJ is the project leader.

With the support of the European Community, YUM aims to involve young musicians, singers and dancers, as well as professionals and members of the jury from the current EU candidate countries in the three festivals and to get them acquainted with the European cultural sector. These EU candidate countries are Iceland, Montenegro, Serbia, Turkey, Macedonia, Albania, Bosnia Herzegovina and Kosovo.

Including all new countries in just one festival would not be realistic, therefore the project has been spread over 6 festivals, from 1/5/2015 to 31/08/2017, each having 4 activities focusing on artists and professionals from the 8 EU candidate countries. YUM lasts for 28 months giving the EU participants a vocal (2016) and instrumental (2017) EMJ festival edition, an EJE 2016 festival and 2017 exchange program and 3 BMA festivals for youngsters.

At the end of the project, we hope to have contributed in the transformation of the EU candidate countries into full EU members who will have found their way to the European creative and cultural sector. As such we expect to find them among the regular participants after this project's end date – having achieved our goal of helping these countries getting more involved in the European community.

Module 2. Lesson 3. European Capitals of Culture

Activity 1 Reading: Read the article below and answer the questions:

Tibor Navracsics, European Union Commissioner for Education, Culture, Youth and Sport

Over the past 30 years, the European Capitals of Culture have grown into one of the most ambitious cultural projects in Europe. And they have become one of the best known — and most appreciated — activities of the European Union (EU).

The original motivation of the project — started in 1985 on the initiative of the then Greek Minister of Culture Melina Mercouri — is still very much valid: to bring citizens of the European Union (or the European Community, as it was then called) closer together.

By providing opportunities for Europeans to meet and discover the great cultural diversity of our continent and to take a fresh look at our common history and values, the European Capitals of Culture promote mutual understanding and intercultural dialogue among citizens and increase their sense of belonging to a community.

The European Capitals of Culture remain first and foremost a cultural event. Cultural activity in these cities increases, new audiences can be reached and the city's cultural operators can acquire a more international outlook and thus improve their skills and professionalism. The European Capitals of Culture also contribute to forging an image of an attractive and creative Europe open to cultures from across the world.

Being a European Capital of Culture can also boost the long-term socioeconomic development of cities. They often take this opportunity to regenerate themselves, improve their creative and innovative potential, develop new and more sustainable forms of tourism and raise their profile. Being a European Capital of Culture can also foster social and territorial cohesion within city boundaries and beyond, strengthen citizens' roles in the city's development as well as their participation in the shaping and making of cultural expressions.

This brochure showcases successful projects in recent European Capitals of Culture. They show that the European Capitals of Culture have become laboratories of strategic investment in culture, benefiting our economies and our societies as a whole.

The European Capitals of Culture are an integral part of the Creative Europe programme 2014–20, whose ambition is to promote Europe's cultural diversity and cultural heritage and to reinforce the competitiveness of our cultural and creative sectors. Creative Europe helps artists, cultural professionals and cultural organisations to adapt to the digital age and globalisation, work across borders and reach as many people as possible in Europe and beyond. It also supports efforts to improve access to finance through the setting-up of a new financial guarantee facility.

I am pleased to celebrate the 30th anniversary of the European Capitals of Culture, and I invite you to discover more on the following pages.

1. What is the idea about?
2. Whose idea was it to award some cities with the title European Capital of Culture?

As a matter of course, a printed or electronic notice informing you of your EU air passenger rights must be clearly displayed at the airport check-in desk. This information must also be shown at check-in kiosks in the airport and on-line. European Credit Transfer and Accumulation System (ECTS)

http://ec.europa.eu/education/resources/european-credit-transfer-accumulation-system_en

What is it?

ECTS is a credit system designed to make it easier for students to move between different countries. Since they are based on the learning achievements and workload of a course, a student can transfer their ECTS credits from one university to another so they are added up to contribute to an individual's degree programme or training.

ECTS helps to make learning more student-centred. It is a central tool in the Bologna Process, which aims to make national systems more compatible.

ECTS also helps with the planning, delivery and evaluation of study programmes, and makes them more transparent.

Why is it needed?

The EU in short for teens

The differences between national systems can lead to problems with the recognition of educational qualifications from other countries and of periods of study taken abroad. Greater transparency of learning achievements simplifies the recognition of studies done in other countries.

ECTS also makes it possible to merge different types of learning, such as university and work-based learning, within the same programme of study or in a lifelong learning perspective.

How does it work?

ECTS credits represent the workload and defined learning outcomes („what the individual knows understands and is able to do“) of a given course or programme. 60 credits are the equivalent of a full year of study or work. In a standard academic year, 60 credits would be usually broken down into several smaller components.

A typical „first cycle“ (or Bachelor‘s) Degree, would consist of 180 or 240 credits, whereas a typical „second cycle“ (or Master‘s) Degree, would consist of 90 or 120 credits, with at least 60 credits at second cycle level. The use of ECTS at the „third cycle“ (or Ph.D. level) varies. ECTS has been adopted by most of the countries in the European Higher Education Area (EHEA), and is increasingly used elsewhere. The ECTS Users‘ Guide describes the ECTS credit system, and how to use it. ECTS is also used in other documents that help to organise students‘ learning mobility, including:

- The Course Catalogue,
- The Transcript of Records

ECTS also helps make other documents such as the Diploma Supplement clearer and easier to use in different countries.

True or False?

1. The ECTS is a system which helps students to get their diplomas recognized by other universities ____
2. The ECTS is a system which works well in Bologna only. ____
3. The credit points which are given represent the workload of a certain university program. ____
4. The ECST helps students to acquire knowledge and skills in a lifelong learning prospective. ____
5. The ECTS leads to problems with recognition of the courses and programs throughout EU. ____
