Little Red Riding Hood wanted to go to her grandmother's house. So she had to pass through the woods. When she was in the middle of the woods, a big bad wolf appeared and tried to disorientate her because he wanted to go to her grandmother's house to eat her. Little Red Riding Hood started picking flowers and playing with the animals around. Meanwhile the big bad wolf went to grandma's house and ate her. When Little Red Riding Hood arrived at her grandma's house, the wolf was lying in grandma's bed dressed in her clothes. Little Red Riding Hood asked her grandma why she had big eyes, ears and a huge mouth. Grandma, who was actually the wolf, replied 'because I'm going to eat you!'. Then a woodcutter, who was passing by just outside the house, heard the voices and got into the house. At the end, the woodcutter killed the wolf and granny and Little Red Riding Hood lived happily ever after.
