

Erasmus +

Tour Guide

Required Studies: In case of becoming a tour guide you need to have a high school diploma.

Working Hours: A tour guide works 8 hours a day.

Skills for the job: You need to have communication and customer skills, energy, flexibility, responsibility, knowledge of the tour subject.

Pros and Cons: You are able to visit all the best locations around the world and get paid to do it.

Your accommodation is paid for if you travel overseas, and transport around the cities is also paid for by the company. All your meals are also paid for, whether it is just lunch and coffee during a day tour, or a full three meals a day during week or month long trips.

You are constantly learning and educating yourself about all different destinations as you have to do plenty of research as part of your job.

It is exciting – this career is perhaps one of the most interesting you can get. You spend time outdoor, visiting interesting places, and basically having a vacation every day. You are not stuck in an office at a desk.

You are able to save money, as there are hardly any expenses working as a tour guide.

Basic salary: A tour guide earns 1.680€/per month