

Narrative designer

What does a narrative designer do?

He will imagine, create and write the storyline of a video game. He writes the dialogues and will also write the story of the main and secondary characters and make character sheets where he will describe their physique, their stories, their objectives and motivations, etc.

Studies

- training and design courses
- after the baccalaureate: Bac +2 to Bac +5
- design studies

Wages

2452 € per month on average

Knowledge required

You obviously need to have a very good knowledge of the world of video games and game design. It's a job that requires a strong mind analysis and a lot of creativity. It is essential to be able to provide an original gaming experience that is ever closer to the desires of the players. It is therefore necessary to ensure sector monitoring and to remain attentive to new trends and innovations in the sector.