

E A R T H

International Day of Peace

What is it?

Each year the International Day of Peace is celebrated around the world on 21 September. The UN General Assembly has announced this as a day dedicated to strengthening the peace, through observing 24 hours of non-violence and cease-fire.

An aerial photograph of a coastline, showing a dark blue sea on the left and a rugged, brownish landscape on the right. A large black circle is positioned at the top center of the image, partially obscuring the sky. The text is overlaid on the image.

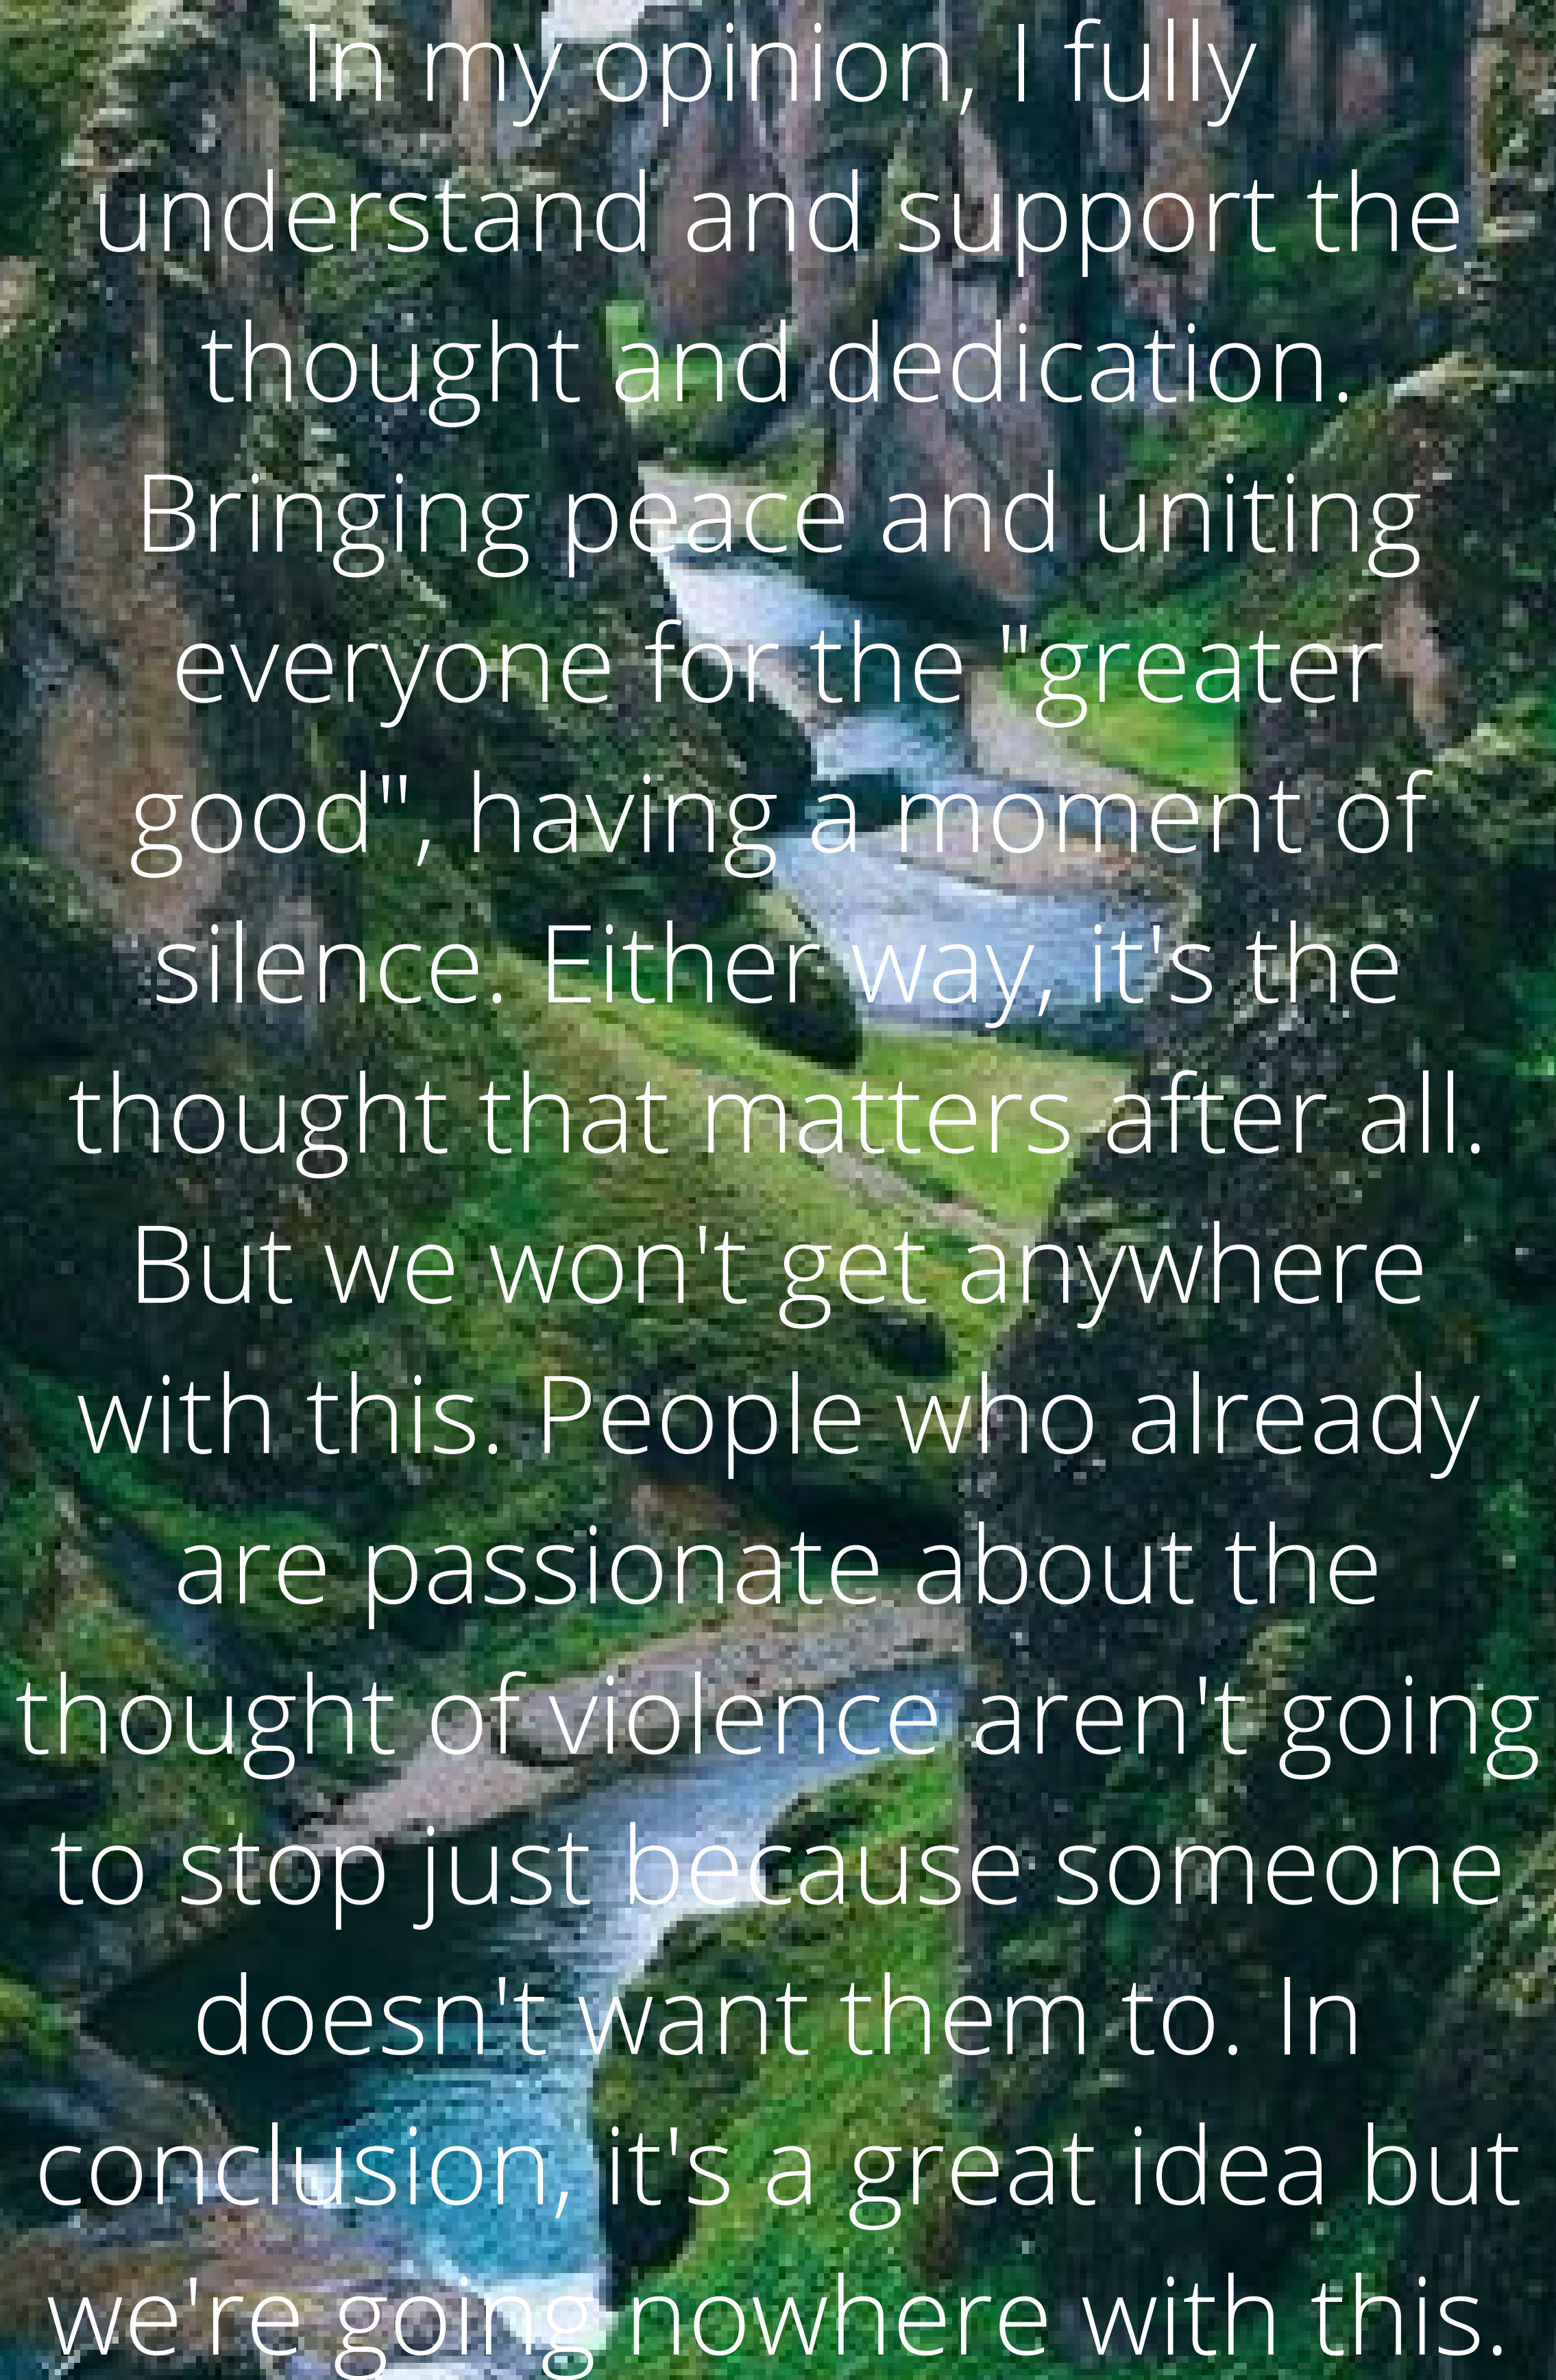

How to celebrate this day?

Look for Peace Day activities in your own community or around the world. In 1984, the "NGO Pathways To Peace" created the Minute of Silence at 12:00 noon in each time zone, resulting in a "Peace Wave" around the world.

If talking about peace the most peaceful country in the world is Ireland. Ireland is the safest country in the world with one of the lowest crime rates and it is in the "Happiest countries in the world" top 5.

photo of Ireland

A scenic view of a river flowing through a lush, green valley with steep, rocky hillsides. The river is the central focus, winding through the valley and surrounded by dense vegetation. The hillsides are covered in green grass and small trees, and the overall atmosphere is peaceful and natural.

In my opinion, I fully understand and support the thought and dedication. Bringing peace and uniting everyone for the "greater good", having a moment of silence. Either way, it's the thought that matters after all. But we won't get anywhere with this. People who already are passionate about the thought of violence aren't going to stop just because someone doesn't want them to. In conclusion, it's a great idea but we're going nowhere with this.