On this morning we went to school for the first time. In the auditorium the headmaster welcomed us. While the guests were guided through the school, the German students did organisation stuff. After that we were divided into five work groups and got our topics for the week. My topic was to create a brochure. I was very glad, that my exchange partner Ellinoora from Finland was in this group as well. We scheduled a project plan for the next days.

After lunch we had a very good sport session which made a lot of fun. Then a man from the OK Lab told us something about “How to make our cities more breathable”. He demonstrated us an instrument for the measurement of the pollution in our air.

In the evening we went with my family to the bowling alley in Stuttgart, where we spent a funny time.

Saturday, 25th November 2017

Despite it was weekend we had to get up early because we met at the bus station in Nellingen at 8.45. Today we visited the Daimler museum, where I learned a lot about the development of cars, the company formation of Daimler and the World Exhibition.

Because of the cloudy weather we couldn't go to the TV Tower, it was really a pity!

In the afternoon, we played the game “Mister X” and thereby we got to know the public transport system in Stuttgart, even I visited many stations where I have never been before.

After the game we interviewed some groups what they were thinking about the day and what they had learned related to their topics. Our interviews were recorded with our smartphones, for the purpose of recalling them later.

Sunday, 26th November 2017

Today I had a handball game in Nellingen. I explained to Ellinoora the handball rules and she came to watch my match. After then it was time for me to study a little bit, because of the following tests in Biology and Politics.

But I had enough time with my group to analyse the interviews and to start our power point presentation. The goal of every group was to convince the other of their statement while debating. We ended that we need more interviews and to take photos.

At the end of the day almost everybody came together to spend time at a bowling alley. We decided to play in our working groups to improve our group feeling. I think this was really successfully to get to know each other.

Monday, 27th November 2017

On Monday I had to go to school, but my group members from Finland and Estonia were allowed to take part in a guided tour in Stuttgart. Their topic focused the air pollution in Stuttgart and solutions.

Later we came together for planning our project and to share the new information. We all met at school hall at 15.30 and had some workshops about debating.

We looked forward to “The Great OHG Bake off”, I think we had a lot of fun together and nothing of the cookies left. I was really surprised, that they didn’t know to bake Christmas cookies, like we did in Germany.

We all waited for this final day. The topics of the two debates were “Fresh air should be a human right” and “Cars should be banned from city centers.” After this we presented what we did the whole week. I learned how to debate in English and I want to improve my English skills. I think we all did it well and showed our abilities.

Then we had enough time to eat something warm and to spend time together in Nellingen. My brother had a handball match with the school team, so I watched him playing.

We all came together at 16.00 to go to the Christmas market in Esslingen. Unfortunately was today a rainy weather, but we liked the market with this sweet smells and with a hot punch it wasn't cold yet.

Two hours later we went to my home to play games and to enjoy our last evening. It was really hard to let all my new friends go.
