At 7.45 we had all Headmasters welcome in school auditorium. After that, we were introduced the programme and we had a tour through school. After the tour we made groups and we were introduced to project work and we had some debating workshops. At 13.00 we had sport session, where we played table tennis, basketball and volleyball. At 15.00 we had a talk and discussion “How to make our cities more breathable”. After that we had some free time and we walked around a little bit with Lennart but soon we went to the Trainee-programme which Lennart participated in. In this day I learnt about the air pollution which is a really big problem in Stuttgart and also in Germany. In our team we managed to give everybody some main points to search from the internet. Also, we argued who is going to debate and who is going to search more information. I liked my group from the first sight.

On Saturday morning we visited the Daimler museum in Stuttgart. There we learned about the history of the car industries in Stuttgart. Afterwards, I and Lennart headed straight home because of Lennart grandmother’s birthday. She lives near the city of Mannheim, so we directly went there. After a two-hour drive I met the cousins, uncle, aunt and grandparents. They all were very friendly and I enjoyed being with them. We celebrated the birthday and had a very fun evening with very good food. On this day I did not do a lot of work and research.

In the morning we were still at Lennart’s grandparent’s house where we spent time with family. We went on a walk and played a few games. In the afternoon I did some research about my debating topic. In the evening, when we had gotten home again, we met with most of the other students and went to bowling in Esslingen. It was really nice to talk, laugh and have fun with other students.

On Monday morning we went to Stuttgart with all the exchange student and had a guided tour. The main point was air pollution in Stuttgart and we discussed about the solutions as well. In the afternoon I met my group and we talked through the information we had collected over the past days. Then we arranged the speaking order of our group for the debate on Tuesday. I think our team work was really good and that's because of our good communicating skill. Afterwards we went to bake cookies. It was a lot of fun to share one of the best things about Christmas with people from other countries and make each other dirty with flour. In the evening me and Lennart met up with some students and just had a nice time playing games and talking with each other.

In the morning we went to school and talked through some main debating points. After that we listened to the first debate and then it was our turn. I think our team did really well because we had some really good facts. After that we had lunch and at 16.00 we left for the Christmas market in Esslingen. There we watched at nearly all of the attractions and bought quite a lot of stuff. Because it was the last evening before I and all the other exchange students had to leave, we decided to meet up again. We had a great evening where everybody laughs but also were unhappy because of leaving. After exchanging all necessary information to stay in touch, we said goodbye and headed home, hoping to see each other again some time.
