Starting the Jimdo blog and a film

On Tuesday 2nd of April 2019 Mrs Seibert held a presentation about Jimdo and how to use it. We then created a website on Jimdo, where we present who we are, what we do, and also upload texts to inform and motivate young voters for European election in May. We did this in five separate groups, who worked on the topics mentioned earlier. In the Jimdo Film group, they try to do a Film to motivate young people to vote by the European election.

Real news vs. Fake news, Šime Vičević

In the first presentation a journalist talked about the media, the fake news and how to recognize them. He started the presentation explaining us why the media is important and the three types of media there are, which are: print media, broadcast media and digital or new media. He also told us some examples of them. We learned that the media convergence happens when different media sources join together (computers, smartphones, Internet, facebook...) Then we had the chance to write a report in pairs or in groups of three. He showed us a picture of a fire in Split and we had to invent all the story as real journalists. With this report, we realized that fake news have a part of truth and, nowadays, it is easy to share information so fake news can be spreaded quickly. Afterwards, we answered, in the same groups, some questions: why and who create fake news and one example we knew.

Let's advertise real things, Tihana Magaš

In the second workshop „let's advertise real things“ by Tihana Magaš the focus was on advertisement. We had to split up in five groups. Each group received a note with a word on it relating to the topic „news“. There were words like for example „newspaper, television or president of the EU“ and we had to discuss how these terms are related to the EU and the news we receive. Later on we had to act like politicians therefore each group was talking about a problem which affects the EU members. Healthcare, education and climate change were the topics we discussed. We talked about the problems and tried to find solutions. The results were presented in form of speeches or posters to the other groups. This way we learnt how politicians spread their aims and opinions among the citizens. In addition we got informed on how affective the different types of media (TV, newspapers, radio, social media) are.
