

MONKEY WANTS HIS PAPA BACK HOME

One day a family of monkeys made up of the dad, Alok, the mum, Netra, and their son, Ravi, wanted to go for some food and water. So they started a long journey to Tirkol, a beautiful land, teeming with lots of fruit, water and seeds: their paradise!

After many days, the family finally reached Tirkol and, being very hungry because of the long walk, began eating everything they found. For the following week, Ravi played with his parents and kept eating undisturbed every fruit and seed he saw.

Ravi was a curious monkey and wanted to explore new places of that beautiful land, so he decided to go far away to see the river of Tirkol.

He drifted further and further, without realizing it...

He turned up at a noisy place, where there were dozens and dozens of monkeys of Tirkol.

Ravi was frightened of them and wanted to return to his parents but he didn't know their position. Ravi started looking around to find, at first some food because he hadn't eaten in a day, and then his loving parents.

Alok and Netra were so sad because they didn't know where their son was so they decided to divide to search for Ravi.

After some days of looking for her son in the most isolated places, the mum found her cub with the monkeys of Tirkol.

Those monkeys were really selfish but in this occasion, since Ravi was a little monkey, they helped him to find some food, they kind of adopted him...

Mum and son were fortunately together but what about Alok? He was still looking for his son, far away from Tirkol...

The little monkey decided to ask all the other monkeys if they had seen his dad with questions like: “Hey, have you seen my dad, a very tall monkey?” “Hello, have you seen a monkey called Alok? He’s my father and I don’t know where he is...”

No one had information about him, but one of the Tirkol's monkey told him that there was a parrot that could know something.

The parrot was the most elderly and wise animal of all the creatures that lived in Tirkol. He was very colorful and he could also repeat information told by other animals. He always wanted to help every animal that was in trouble and he was very kind.

Netra and Ravi decided to talk to him, to discover if he knew something about Alok.

The colorful parrot told them that he had seen a tall brown monkey with some black monkeys just some hours before...

Netra understood that Alok was in trouble because the black monkeys were bad and dangerous and they came from a forest called Mulai.

The parrot told them that they should hurry up and look for Alok if they wanted to find him safe and sound.

So, mum and son ran as fast as they could, toward the forest. There, there were lots of black monkeys that were fighting against Tirkol's monkeys.

Ravi was so frightened that his mum had to pick him up.

Netra made space among the other monkeys and at some point she saw Alok surrounded by some Mulai's monkeys.

Ravi wanted to bring his papa back home, so his mother and him decided to fight against those bad monkeys even if they were the majority.

Netra and Ravi were going to be attacked by the wicked black monkeys, but suddenly some friends of the Tirkol land went to rescue them. The family was now reunited and the mean monkeys were defeated.

At the end Alok, Netra and their son went back to Tirkol and thanked the elderly parrot and all the monkeys that had helped them.

They settled in that beautiful land and lived happily and quietly, promising each other not to separate anymore.

By Elena Santambrogio, Orjan Hebaj, Marketa Stankusova, Veronika Sanitakova within the eTwinning project «Say Hello and Smile».

Special thanks to «Storyweaver» for the drawings on the cover and page 4, 10

