

Much, many, a lot of

Much, many with a noun

We use much with uncountable nouns and many with plural countable nouns: Usually in questions and negative sentences.

I haven't got much money.

Are there many houses near you?

In informal styles, we prefer to use a lot of in affirmative sentences for uncountable and for countable nouns

I went shopping and spent a lot of money.

There are a lot of houses near me.

Complete the sentences using much / many

1-Jane hasn't got MUCH time.

- Do you know..... words in English?
- He didn't eat ..... meat.
- There isn't ..... butter in the fridge.
- How .....eggs did the hens lay?
- Samantha hasn't got.....money Bruce.
- How .....lessons do you have on Mondays?
- There was ..... noise in the streets.
- I cannot see .....stars in the sky tonight.
- Do you have.....friends abroad?

Little, few with a noun

We use little with uncountable nouns. We use few with plural countable nouns.

I have little sugar in my coffee.

Few cities in Europe are as beautiful as Bilbao

We had ..... snow last winter.

..... people were interested in the exhibition.

- I speak .....French.
- There are .....animals in that zoo.
- She has .....friends.
- There is .....water in the pond.
- The professor spends .....time explaining the lesson.
- We have.....apples in the fridge.
- There are.....mushrooms in my basket.
- .....animals can survive in the desert.