

Dissemination on Face Book of the Art Performance Living Guernika at the Opening Ceremony of “Andalusian Green Living: Sustainable Tourism, a Way of Living: Travel Green” in Torremolinos, February 17th, 2020

Extracted for Face Book:

Recycled Guernika in Erasmus "Green Alliance" mobility. February 2020. Most exquisite description, magnificent portrayal and accurate explanation through the clear lucid mind of my very good friend Rodriguez Huesca Rohu, professional photographer and dearest friend.

“This morning I attended Los Manantiales (Secondary collaborative School) at the last Guernica performance, invited by my old friend Daphne Prados Pelet, with whom I shared hallways and a classroom many years ago at that same institute. Today she is a teacher and has known how to make her profession a passion.

Today's performance was the farewell to an original idea that has been showing, for years, the famous painting by Picasso. As well as the motifs that caused it to be painted.

Today's performance was the farewell to an original idea that has been showing, for years, the famous painting by Picasso. As well as the motifs that caused it to be painted.

I must admit that I was pleasantly impressed by the assembly and the final result. As well as the sound effects that gave the gravity and emotion that the scene required.

And to top it off, some students explained the history and meaning of the painting, one of them playing the role of a young Picasso. Of course the explanations were given in English, since the group that attended the representation came from different parts of Europe as it was Erasmus.

From here I send my congratulations to the protagonists of the act for their good work, and especially to my friend Daphne and Manuel Olmo, also a teacher, and who was busy getting the sound to work correctly.”
