

DEAR FUTURE GENERATIONS

Nowadays, every day we see how progress has been made in the fight against racial discrimination, but we continue to see episodes that should not happen in the 21st century, such as the recent death of the American George Floyd at the hands of a policeman, and many more. We cannot overcome this phase and understand that we are all people, equal and with the same rights. For the future I would like us to stop attacking each other because why do we fight? We must all have respect towards others and towards their origins, we must leave behind the events of the past but without them being forgotten. In conclusion, I would like a future in which we all live together in peace and leave violence in the past.

Goodbye.

Ana Girona Alcaide