“Children’s Concert”
1900

George Iakovidis was born in Lesvos -the Greek island- in 1853 and studied Arts in Athens and Munich, Germany. He liked painting family moments and innocent children. In his paintings we can see

“Music in Art” “Family in Art”
“ Every day life in Art”

- This is his famous painting “Children’s concert”. It’s in the National Gallery in Athens. It won the first prize in Paris in 1900.
- It’s not a real concert. It’s a family with a lot of children. They are poor but happy. They are playing music to make their little sister happy.
- It’s spring. It’s sunny and warm. The window is open and the flowers smell nice. The house is poor but clean and bright. We can see plants, a lamp, a wooden table and chairs. There are beautiful colours.
- Listen! Music and laughing! The children are playing the drum, the trumpet, the harmonica and the... watering can.
