P 22 Each class expert will place their work into a model of the food chain in the forest ecosystem.

The model "The food chain in the forest biotope" will be shared and studied within each school and sent to the different partners for study and comparison

Snails are herbivores that feed mainly on green leaves. However, they are a real scourge for gardeners because they like to eat more fruits and vegetables and can cause great damage to their crops.

The students from 2b class drew a food chain of a garden snail
