

I think the peer learning method is a good way of connecting students with young pupils. The first day everyone was as excited as I was to be included in this project. And there were so many volunteers I couldn't believe it. I helped the students with my friend Tim. Some students weren't supportive to be helped by us as much as others. After our school day ended we went to their classrooms and helped them with their homework for an hour. I didn't mind the fact that this was taking up hours of my time.
