8.March International women's day in Slovakia

The first holiday of International women's day in the Czechoslovak Republic took place in 1921 and a year later it acquired a mass character. During the Second World War, the International women's day was abolished, the last one took place in 1938. After 1945, the International women's day was renewed again.

Before the First World War, women set the following requirements:

- suffrage
- eight-hour working hours
- improving special legislation

Since 1975, it has been commemorated as a day of international solidarity for women for equality, justice, peace and development.
