Customer service

Finnish customer service is maby little more strict. Austrian payment methods are different specially in coffeehouses, you pay when you leave. When in Finland you usually pay when you order.

Austrians don't often speak english, even near Vienna's tourist attractions. So when you try to talk to them in English, they flee.

Pretty same.. Maby few differences like tipping waitress is more common in Austria Finnish customer service is usually more polite and helpful compared to Austrian.
There are differences. In Finland there is more self-service. In Austria waitresses and waiters serve the customers e.g. in restaurants.

In Finland people serves clients in many different languages. In Austria, as a rule, are served only in German. Also the customer servants are generally more friendly in Finland, than in Austria.

in austria it was bretty diferent but not so muts

There are only a few Points. in The main Point it's the same

Austrian customer service is more rude, they don't smile and don't speak English
(when you look between Lappish style of customer service)

Finnish people never give tip.

In austria it's common to give tips, not in finland

The Finish People are very friendly and helpful. they talk very much.

I think it is quite the same but i think they are friendlier and cook deffinitely better then we do.

tip, friendliness and so on!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!

Drink milk everytime.

Austrian customer service is better and more seriously then finnish customer service. The stuff in finland have good english skills, the austrian not so much.

Finnish People usually don't give tips.

Finish Server speak a lot better english than austrian People. In finish Bars and Pubs, IDs are getting checked a lot more compared to austrian ones.

- Tips: Finnish People give tips if the sevice was really good - Young/old People in finland have better english skills at their working place - there are often securities in front of Pubs - if you want to order Drinks then you have to go to the Counter and pay for that. - if you enter certain Pubs you have to give your jacket at the coat check (3€) -

In Finland customer service is more hospitable

Finnish customer service is more helpful than Austrian. Finnish people dont expect the tips.

Suomalaisilla on parempi laatu ja enempi asiakaspalveluhenkisyyttä

I didn't notice differences between Finnish and Austrian customer service. Only thing what i actually noticed was the "Mr and Mrs"- thing in Austria. Everyone seems like using it and it looks like normal thing up there.

Culture

Austrians respect their nature and are tolerant people. Two biggest political parties are Liberals and Green party. (Atleast in southern Austria?)

On a keyboard, the Y and Z keys are swapped. Austrians are much more formal. (Well, in formal situations at least. But they definitely do have more of those situations, where they need to speak formally.)

Austrian culture for example at school is different (teachers are call mr./ms) and students don't have so many break during school day

There are more breaks during a school day in Finland. The Finnish language is difficult and it is not easy to remember words.

In Austria, people are allowed to smoke tobacco inside the restaurants. In Austria, teachers are treated different than in Finland.

in austria u haveto give a tip for service

I learned a lot about the Sami coulture

Austrians don't have so much rules in country. And they are not alcoholic. Finnish teachers doesn't understand the way of Austrian drinking culture.

They have Samis.

I got the impression, that finnish people are more connected to the nature at first you think they are very shy and they don't want to talk but it is the opposite. When you now them better they are very friendly and communtive.

They have native habitants called Sami.

Finnish: I saw the beautiful landscape and how they treat their culture Austrian: I learned a lot of new things, for example the Heuriger, it was my first time I went to a Heuriger when the finnish students were in Austria Finland- They talk to the teacher how they talk to the friends. Facilities for handicapped. Everything is expensive than in Austria Austria- you must pay for your Food.

Finland: In Finland the Students and teachers talk like they are friends. Different School cultures. Finnish People haven't to pay for their Food at the School.

The students talk to teachers like they told to friends For students in Finland is the food free - in their school they eat a lot of bread the finnish cultur is very interessting, i like the traditionell food, the tradionell clothes and the houses very much. The teachers made the whole prästentions for the students .

The alcohol is much more expensive. Most of them speak english very good.

They do not have a "please" in their language.

- Finnish People drink more (alcohol is also extremely expensive) - Finland is more strict with alcohol and going out (you should be 18 to stay longer than 22:00) - Finns are more conected to the nature - Young People who live in levi get a levi-card. things get cheaper by using it - accomodation is for free or extremely cheap (School) - lunch is for free (School) - Finns don't have the word "you're welcome"

a lot, Austrians don't use sauces so much. They have shorter skis (deeper mountains), Lunch: soup, main dish, dessert etc.

In Austria people likes to sing and dance traditional songs instead finnish likes only speaking each other.

Opettajat ja kulttuuri heillä on erilaisesta, toiste en koulun reissuihin lähde. tuli liian paavottu ja sellainen olo, että vaikka oli täysiikäinen, kohdeltiin kuin 12 vuotiasta.

This might sound bad, but i didn't learn much...

People

We share language with our neighbour country. Austria - Germany, Finland - Sweden. Austrian people are tolerant and polite.

Both are quite punctual. (Not counting lazy/tired students.)

Austrians tend to say more often 'please'. Finnish people take more time. Austrians are very punctual.

Austrian people was more friendly than finish peolpe.

I think people are pretty similar.

similiar are snow but wheather is totaly diferenth

there are no real differences in my eyes except the language

Finnish people are slow.

Finnish people are more distant at the beginning than austrians

They talk very much. they wear different clothes.

When they speak finnish, it sounds like they have no commas and Points in their sentences. It's a Little strange that they say the first Name to their teacher and not their surname

Some of them are not as open as we are. But if you get closer to them they are very friendly and tolerant. <3

they are almost the same

Austrian People are friendly , especially nice and polite to foreigners, the finish people aren't

Finnish People are rather calm and quiet

Austian People are more open.

They are quite calm and quiet until you get to know them.

- Finnish People are more relaxed. They also talk to their teachers like they were friends and hugging teachers isn't weird. - It seems like Finns are in the beginning a bit shyer small country next to big country,

Austrian people like talk mmietially. Finnish people instead are very quiet for beginning but they are very warm people when you get to know them.

Heille uskonto on tärkeää ja kunnioittavat liiaksikin vanhempiaan, suomalaiset kulkevat oman pään mukaan.

Austrian people were more polite than finns, i think. They really wanted to show places and their foodculture to us. They worked hard on it. Austrian people seemed pretty friendly and openminded in contrast to finnish people.

Food

Austrian Ice cream is delicious. Finland maby has more things from our nature included in our food. Berries, Vegetables etc. Snitzchel Is something worth trying. Breakfast in Austria is variable and delicious.

Austrians sure like their dry schnitzel. Salads, not so much. Eating at a restaurant is cheaper in Austria, (you know I don't mean a fancy expensive restaurant, just a diner or something.)

Austrian food is really dry, (dry rise, chicken..)

Finnish food includes sauces with steaks, Austrian food usually doesn't have any sauce.

Finnish: more sauces, more fish, a lot of coffee Austrian: bigger breakfast

i like more our own food than austrian food :D

In Austria, the food is drier. In Finland, we use sauces on food, and I think the food is better in Finland.

in austria food was good but there was no sous it was dry

In Finland is fish more popular

Austrian is more old-style

They eat more fish.

Finnish people eat a lot of fish

The Finish People drink much Milk all day long and eat meat from reindeers.

Finnish food is so much better than Austrian Food but they cook much with fish.

They always drink milk, to every meal!

Food in Austria is more seasoned

Finnland- for breakfast they eat porridge

They eat a lot of bread with butter. They drink a lot of milk.

In Finland they eat a lot of bread. They drink very often milk

The Finnish drink a lot of milk everytime, and eat a lot of fish. They always want to eat warm dishes, and no cold snacks, like the Austrian. The finnish butter is salted

We have a big different taste in candy. The Finnish McDonalds had better meals than the Austrian one.

Austrian People eat a lot of fried food

Big different taste in candy!

- Austrian food is more fatty and and dry - Finnish people always have milk as a drink

In Finland there is more vegetables.

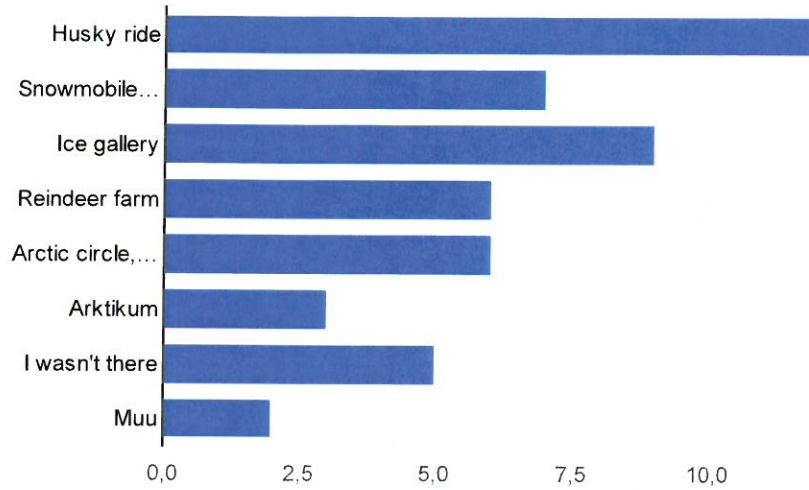

Austrian meals are much bigger than finnish meals. Also they like to put rice or french fries

Suomalainen ruoka on hyvää! Itävaltalainen ruoka oli enimmäkseen, suolaista ja kuivaa...

Well.. The panncakesoap was an interesting food... It was terrible :D and food was more like junkfood in Austria than in Finland.

I would like to stay in the organic Farm and get to know the farm owners and get to know their daily habits. I also would like to see more of Vienna.

Yes, yes there are . Thank you Frau Kurz, for changing the wording of this question.

Vienna and Mariazell

Levi skiing centre Arktikum

Vienna!!

vienna and some of my austrian friends place

Vienna

Yes, of course! I would like to visit again up in the mountains! It was an awesome place!

Improvement

I think the project was close to perfection. Wouldn't change a bit.

Force the Austrians to visit Finland during the spring, autumn or summer. We have eight seasons here, and you saw the worst one. Twice. I hope you at least enjoyed that world cup you came to see.

perhaps organize eTwinning's material differently.

offer more private contacts between students

I would have liked to seek to this project in the past.

i dont know...

Not so many rules.

It would have been great to have more time together

Ten days are too long.

BUY NO TABLET !!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!

the Finish should be more enthusiastic, more glad by working with the austrian people

nothing

Nothing

No governmental building tours

Be more active in the beginning,

Try to avoid communication problem which we had somepoint.

I don't know.. i think i couldn't do it better.
