

When you have a look from the arch called Puerta de Elvira, you can see Albaicín, the oldest Arabic neighbourhood in Granada.

Walking along its streets, squares and slopes you discover it is a fortress city. Many streets here are less than 2 metres wide and some you can't even notice them, unless you know they exist. This was a defence system in the city.

After a while walking and following the streets names you can go to a high part of the city, opposite The Alhambra but you didn't go up any slope.

ACTIVITY for JUNE 16, 2018

When in Granada ...

With the challenge that we propose you must reach three conclusions:

- 1.- After the analysis of the photos you must deduce where you are.
- 2.- Following the name of the streets that I propose in Google Maps three dimensions, you must deduce what kind of city you are going to visit.
- 3.- Starting at a height of 0 meters (Puerta Elvira) and reaching 120 meters (Mirador de San Nicolás) you must draw a conclusion. Keep in mind that you must climb on the ground, if you do not observe it on your virtual tour, you will appreciate it when you are in Granada and do it on foot.

Here you are the images for the first activity.

*Here you are
Some models of street signs.
You must carry out the second and third
Part of the challenge,
Following the names that I give you in Google,*

*The names part from a famous door called: PUERTA EL VIRA
(but beware, it doesn't open). Once located, follow the itinerary that the following names of streets make up:*
