

Croatian coordinator impression

As predicted, the mobility to Croatia was an unforgettable experience for both teachers and students who lived eight days of excitement and wonder eagerly trying to absorb every view, every feeling, every emotion.

The country is culturally very rich and the host team did a wonderful job taking advantage of that to promote compelling activities which the students really appreciated. The link between the activities and the material and immaterial heritage could not be better. The Croatian team provided us with a great exchange program which meant not only the improvement of students' and teachers' English skills, but also the improvement of many other social skills, like tolerance, respect for the difference, etc.

Of course the mathematical aims of the project were not forgotten. Those were accomplished to the fullest through contextualized tasks adapted to the students' interest and abilities.

In short, the atmosphere that we witnessed in this mobility to Croatia was welcoming and engaging, which allowed students and teachers to better have an understanding of the world and evolve as individuals. The aims of the mobility were fully achieved and we came back home feeling happy and fulfilled.
