

Santa Maria La Blanca

Santa Maria La Blanca is a very important church in Seville, because it has the remains of three types of religions.

Santa Maria La Blanca of Seville

First, it was a Mosque, then, it was made a Synagogue and at last it was made a Christian church. It was made a Synagogue at orders of king Alfonso X in 1252 and in 1391 it became a Christian church.

I don't like churches but this one is very interesting to me.