Akropoli

The Acropolis of Athens (Ancient Greek: Ἀκρόπολις;<sup>[1]</sup> Modern Greek: Ακρόπολη Αθηνών Akrópoli Athinón) is an ancient citadel located on a high rocky outcrop above the city of Athens and contains the remains of several ancient buildings of great architectural and historic significance, the most famous being the Parthenon. The word acropolis comes from the Greek words ἄκρον (akron, "edge, extremity") and πόλις (polis, "city").<sup>[2]</sup> Although there are many other acropoleis in Greece, the significance of the Acropolis of Athens is such that it is commonly known as "The Acropolis" without qualification.

History of 1st Experimental Lyceum of Athens

The history of 1st Experimental Lyceum of Athens“Gennadeio” coincides chronologically with the first pages of Greek Independence History:

- In 1828, Ioannis Kapodistrias, first Governor of Greece, founded the “Central School” in Egina, a school for the teachers to be in the newly established Greek State. This Central School under the direction of important and famous teachers, like Gennadios, was flourishing up to the year 1831 and was transferred in Athens, first at the house of Kleantes in Plaka in 1835 and later at our building.
- Since 1984, 1st Lyceum of Athens functions as a mixed Lyceum for both boys and girls 15-18years old.
- In 1993, it was decided to name it “Gennadeion Lyceum” in honor of George Gennadeios, who served as a teacher and a school director who made the name of the school well known for its students achievements.
