

The Java Tiger has lived for many centuries in the wild, but over the decades urbanization has destroyed its natural habitat, causing its disappearance in 1994.

In 50 years, populations of wild animals have fallen by two thirds, with serious consequences for biodiversity:

ARE WE STILL IN TIME TO RECOVER?

