

The LTTA that I attended under the project “Youngsters Nowadays, Where From, Where To?” was socially and academically one of the best experiences of my life. I was able to work on reports, analyses, present about both local and international sports and also food. Achieving all of this in a team which contains friends from all around Europe was a huge opportunity to improve my teamwork and communication skills and also expanded my cultural perspective. I think I have done my responsibilities properly, and I am proud of that.

Beside projects, hanging out and making quality friendships with people around Europe was invaluable. I would like to thank everyone who participated in making this week happen. Most importantly, Portugese teachers and students, they were as hospitable as they could be, and the project was planned and executed smoothly thanks to them. I have nothing to complain about and look forward to meeting again and host project teachers in Bursa. Cheers!

Travelling to a different country was really exciting and fun. In this project mostly we learned how to do a group work with people who you don't know well, started new friendships and discovered different places of the world. While doing this, we immortalized those moments.

We had a lot of time to socialize with the other participants from Romania, Greece, Portugal and Italy. Necessarily we taught traditional games, popular songs of our countries and different tastes of the participating countries. Necessarily, again, we had to learn the most useful phrases in Portuguese.

It was my first-time-abroad experience. It means, this journey has a different meaning for me. Seeing signs in Portuguese, communicating in English, using Euro as currency... All of these situations helped me to gain experience.

As a result, this project was not only doing work. It was also visiting touristic places, meeting new people, trying a different cuisine, socializing, improving communication skills and gaining basic life experiences. Thanks for having me.

The first day we went to Lisbon was pretty confusing but awesome at the same time. I was in a place that I have never been in and no one actually knew what we were doing. When the airplane landed we went straight to the hotel where we stayed in the night. Some of us took a shower, some of us took a rest and we were ready to go to the dinner. We went to a restaurant which makes local food.

We woke up and went to Praça do Comercio. The statues were pretty impressive. We wanted to get in the elevator to see the city from the sky but there was a long queue so instead we went to shopping. When the shopping time was over we went to a museum. Then we went to the hotel and a bus named FatimaCar came to pick us.

After a quite long way we were finally at our new hotel with the students from different countries like Romania, Greece and Italy. To break the ice between us we had dinner together.

After these 2 days we were finally so close with everyone and it was an awesome experience to go to a school which you have never even heard of. The friends I have made there will always be with me.

Meeting new people from other countries, improving our teamwork skills and improving our vision by seeing and understanding different places, lives and society. In my opinion, these were the best opportunities we were granted in Erasmus+ Project. And what we experienced by using these opportunities will definitely be the most useful one for our entire life.

In more details, there was a huge cultural environment occurred by 5 different countries. As the best parts of socializing, we interact with each other, learned the way they live in their countries and compared them. The subjects of the week were sports and eating habits in our countries. Discussing and comparing them also helped a lot to improve the relationships between us and the other students.

We collaborated with other students to prepare a common PowerPoint presentation and we presented them in front of many people. That helped us to gain self-confidence.

This travel was one of the biggest experiences for me.Meeting with new people ,trying new dishes from different countries and being able to see all that landscape and beauty of Portugal was really great for me.

I can say that working with people that I don't know for a week taught me a lot.Having so many foreign friends is amazing.You start to learn so much from them.Even if I said that we worked as a group everyday this wasn't only a working project.We saw so many things and we learned so many things.Such as trying new dishes without prejudice,communicating with strangers without being shy,getting friends easily and socialize more than ever.

Except for all that , it was a great experience because I had the chance to get closer with my friends from the group.So the final thing that I can say about that project is that it's worth every second of it.
