

I've read a book called „The Secret Diary of Adrian Mole Aged $\frac{3}{4}$ ”. It's written in diary style and it shows the real life of a student growing up and the life of a boy Adrian Mole.

Adrian's life was like a roller coaster - he had good things and bad things at the same time.

He didn't have a good happy family because his mother was with other men and dad was alcoholic.

Adrian grew up with acne and that's normal I think, because I'm growing up with acne too. This is really annoying because it can leave bad marks on the face.

With all the problems Adrian still works really hard and dedicates himself to finish the work to a 100%.

Adrian has a lot differences, and we also have a lot of similarities. I have experienced bullying, got into a fight but I also have real friends that can help me and support me. That's why I read this book-it reveals the reality of a student who has a bad family, but still does his best to stay motivated and works hard to complete the task. That's the reason why you should read this book too - it can really tell you a lot about life.

In conclusion, we are kind a similar, but almost two different people. Maybe all teenagers are different. If we were all the same, life wouldn't be as fun and challenging as it is.
