

Title: “The party”.

Objectives:

- To think about the impact our decisions have on our privacy and the privacy of others.

Development:

1. We read the following case:

Carlos has been this weekend in his town parties with his group of friends, also with Andrés, who is a critic person. They had a lot of fun. On Saturday they had a party until dawn and returned home in quite bad conditions, only wishing to catch the bed to rest.

Reviewing Carlos’ mobile photos there are several very funny that he will upload to a known social network. Most of his friends are surprised to see the photos in his profile. Some students, including Andrés, are very upset and have asked Carlos to remove the photos from the social network. He says they’re boring mates and they can’t stand jokes.

- 2. We analyze the case individually, in a small group (4 or 5 students) and in a large group.
- 3. We think of a final product that reflects the conclusions and commitments.

Work:

Individual work: Each student reflects on the following questions:

1. What do you think Carlos should do? Actually, they are his photos and with them he can do whatever he wants.
2. Does Andres have reasons to be angry? Is it fair?

Small group work: It is a question of determining the rights of both with regard to the personal image and the privacy of the same. Possible solutions that please both groups of friends should also be considered. For these reflections we can help students with the following questions:

1. How can one respect one's own privacy and the privacy of others while showing that they had fun?
2. How to respect the rights of all?

Large group work: We can divide the class into two groups that present their arguments, those who support Carlos in his idea of keeping the photos on the social network and those who believe that he should attend to the requests of those who do not believe it. Collectively, a desirable agreement can be reached. The person conducting the session summarizes the lessons learned from the collective analysis and debate.

Make a digital poster with the conclusions and commitments to be adopted individually or collectively.

Conclusion

What did we learn?

Some conclusions:

- Our actions may put other people's privacy at risk.
- When we make a decision that may affect others, we must be mindful of their views.
- All situations are not to spread them.
- Before posting an image on the internet that engages others, let's think about it and ask them if they want to show it as well.

Commitment

What is the good practice for?

Review the images in our profiles for privacy concerns, limits, and fairness.
