STORY

In a beautiful and famous town known as Battipaglia there was a big toy store that many children knew and that was called "Giocattolandia".

Here there were, lined up on large shelves in a perfect order, all the best toys of Italy ...

Every Monday the owner, an elderly gentleman named ANTONIO, got up early and went around in his car from one factory to another to buy toys. He personally chose all the toys.

One Monday, though, he was sick and could not go around in the car to look for games.

-Grandfather- said his granddaughter LISA – don't worry. We can look for the toys on the Internet and ask to receive them here.

So Mr. ANTONIO sat down at the computer next to LISA and together they ordered a collection of wooden trains. As a gift, there was a "surprise dolls box", something that LISA liked very much.

The next day a courier came to "GIOCATTOLANDIA" with two parcels: one was the package of toy trains and the other the surprise box.

Mr. ANTONIO opened them: the wooden trains were all wonderful, shiny, strong, fast and colorful, just as he had seen them on the Internet. The surprise dolls, on the contrary, A real disaster!

The 5 dolls were all made up of material, tall and slender; two blondes, two with red hair and a dark one.

One of the blonde dolls, however, lacked her skirt and the other was without her shirt. One of the dolls with red hair was missing her shoes and the other was missing the bag. Only the dark haired doll seemed to have everything, didn't she? Oh no! She had no eyes!

Mr. ANTONIO was disappointed with the delivery. However, he arranged the 5 dolls in the shop window.

After a few days a little girl named Maria saw the 5 dolls in the shop.

-How beautiful! - she exclaimed -I like the blonde one. I would buy it but ... it does not have any skirt!

And she left.

-Sigh – sobbed the blonde doll- I really wanted to become Mary's doll. I like that little girl so much!

When she heard her friend crying, the doll without eyes was filled with sadness. So she said -Take my skirt, I don't need it. I don't even have my eyes to look at it ...

And then she took off her skirt and gave it to the blonde doll.

The next day Maria passed again by the shop and when she saw the blonde doll dressed to the nines, she soon asked for it as a gift.

Later on a girl named MARTA passed by the toy shop and saw the remaining 4 dolls.

How beautiful! - she exclaimed -I really like that blonde one. I would buy it but ... it does not have any shirt!

And she left.

-Sigh - sobbed the blonde doll- I really wanted to become MARTA's doll. I like that little girl so much!

When she heard her friend crying so, the doll without eyes was filled with sadness again. So she said -Take my shirt, I don't need it. I don't even have the eyes to look at it ...

And so saying, she took off her shirt and gave it to the second blonde doll.

The next day, Marta was back. She saw the blonde doll dressed to the nines, and soon asked for it as a gift.

The following days Serena and Giulia passed by the shop and the same scene took place again.

A week later Mr. ANTONIO looked at the window and realized that almost all the "different"dolls had been sold. Only one was left: the doll without eyes that had no clothes or accessories anymore! Where were they?

She gave them away to her 4 friends - answered a Teddy Bear that was on the top shelf.

With her clothes the other dolls were so perfect that the little girls wanted them as a gift.

-What a beautiful doll! - thought ANTONIO. - I thought that of all the toys the dark doll, so different, was the less valuable one. On the contrary, it is clearly the most precious. It has a truly unique accessory: a great heart.

A very precious doll indeed! I want to give it to the girl that I love most: my little granddaughter.

And so the different doll had a little girl that loved it and she spent a very long time to make little LISA happy.
