Once upon a time it was late at night. I shall teach glass on the Himmelsleiter, you have to imagine that around the Himmelsleiter is a lot of forest and in the middle of the forest is a house and there lives a ranger alone with his dog. The ranger's name was Oliver. He lay in bed that night and could not sleep when he suddenly saw a very bright light. It was like a flash of light beaming into his whole room. His dog lay curled beside him. The ranger jumped out of his bed and looked at the window. He saw bright light at the top of the Himmelsleiter. He took his gun and his dog lay with him, he wanted to know what had happened. The ranger stopped towards the same light, slowly, cautiously his dog walking behind him whimpering and giving his owner various places. When they got to the light they heard a sound, a high pitched wailing nothing that someone could be in trouble. He gasped his gaze his heart beating in his chest. Then something came out of Himmelsleiter and the darkness pulled him in, everything was dark images flashing in his retina. He was slipping away from the world as he knew it and fast. When he came out he couldn't have been more surprised at what he saw a civilization as advanced the city seemed to defy gravity and the buildings were pulsing with energy and yet this place still seemed mild. The streets were swirling up all the buildings and the trees were sailing at the height of the city. The man stared in complete awe at the height of technology of nature that was so beautiful that a disease parking could not have come close to it. He stopped forward and then overhead he noticed strange flying creature with angular features and rainbow feather which glittered in the sun and could not help but draw your eyes to them and a tail with delicate crystals forming on the end.

The flying creature noted the ranger and his dog. But how? How is this possible? The flow on him, the ranger was paralyzed before fear like and became unconscious. When he again to himself came he saw only one roboter similar being sitting beside him. Oliver saw he live in himself pass and prepared on deadly. However, then he did not note something was, it was his dog. Oliver was stunnedly it asked him what he is. The dog answers: "I am a protector of the fairy world, the gate by you have gone was the main entrance of the sci-fi reality. I will bring you back in your world. The ranger asked itself how his dog transform to this metallic creature. He said: "I was your protector because the bad AIs tried to attack you with their technological capabilities, however, some one came and said you I tried to find out who he was but he ran away. The assassin was stealth he ran from rooftop hiding in the shadows, suddenly he dropped down, knife unsheathed along straight through the creature's rock hard crystal abdomen. The monster cried in agony and fell to the floor with an almighty thud, the floor was coated in a thick layer of oily purple blood, as quickly as he came he was gone, sinking into the shadows back to his lair.
