

Dear... (Whoever it is that's reading this letter.)

I'm writing this letter as a school project. The main aim of the project is to prepare a time capsule to be buried near schools. The time capsule will contain letters to "the next generations" written by students from all over Europe. This is my letter to the next generations.

I'm a girl named Lillian. I'm 15 years old and I live in a little place called Selbu in Norway. I'm a student at Selbu Ungdomsskole, in 10th grade. The things do to in Selbu is pretty limited, and there's not really that many people here either, so I use most of my time when I'm not at school watching cool people talk to cameras (youtubers), or watch TV-shows and movies on Netflix. If I'm feeling social I'll just ask my friends to hang out and we always find something random to do, or we just watch movies and relax.

A few words to describe me are pizzaholic, internet-junkie and the funniest person you'll ever meet. My non-existing social life is actually the funniest joke you'll ever hear. When you first meet me, you might think that I'm super shy and almost never talk (which is true), but once you get to know me, I'm the most random person alive and you will literally never get me to shut up. My greatest talent is watching 5 years' worth of TV-shows in a week.

My music taste really just depends on my mood. If I'm sad I most likely listen to acoustic slow songs with sad lyrics, and if I'm happy I usually listen to rap, rock, pop and basically everything. My favorite artists and bands are: Childish Gambino, Arctic Monkeys, 5SOS, Ed Sheeran, Fall Out Boy, 1D, Drake, Wiz Khalifa, The Neighborhood, Lil Wayne, Ariana Grande, Lana del Rey...and the list just goes on and on.

When I was younger I read many books, but with the time my reading interest has somewhat faded. I don't read that many books now, but my favorite book that I've recently read is "The Fault In Our Stars" by John Green. To write a book that brings out so many different feelings and emotions must take a lot from just one person, so I'm really thankful that he wrote that book, and I know I'm not the only one who thinks that.

A dream that I've always had since I was very young is to one day live in the USA. Specifically in the state of California, in Los Angeles. It is just something about that state and that city that just appeals to me and gets me every time I think about it. I would love to live there someday, but for now I guess I'm just stuck in the same, old Norway (hopefully only for a short amount of time, though).

Best regards, Lillian
