

Dear future friends.

How are you? I am writing to tell you about technology in my century. I would like to share my thoughts about future technology with you.

Today people talk through internet and arrogant information. Also move by means of transport quickly from one place to another. The century there also my electric devices that are useful for everyday needs the people. And finally there are the factories in which people produce goods.

The personnel believe that the internet will evolve both of you speak and will execute orders. I also believe that the electric devices will evolve to operate alone. The means of transport will show you in front of the press of a button. And water and air will be contaminated and the environment may be completely ruined of the factories.

Technology will have improved a lot but the environment will be state.

Love,
Aggeliki
