Process of the lesson: teaching and learning activities

During the lesson group collaboration, role-play, brainstorming as well as heuristic conversation was used.

Each student was given a photo or photocopy asking them to describe the problem the child in the photo or photocopy was facing. Thereafter, they related those problems to the problems that little Andrea saw and was sensitized to in order to found the Smile of the Child.

The students were separated into groups. Each group represented a social or civil provider/carrier having to resolve an issue concerning the problems children faced. Through this procedure many problems came to light and they were able to hone in on the lack of problem-solving abilities by the authorities/people responsible.

At the end of the lesson the students agreed to send a letter to each of the respective carriers with specific suggestions to resolve these children's problems.
